

Barrymore's 'victory' fails to ease my pain

Police admit TV presenter was wrongfully arrested over pool death

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

TERRY Lubbock said he feels no closure 15 years after his son Stuart died in the Roydon home of Michael Barrymore.

The body of father-of-two Stuart Lubbock, 31, was found in a pool in 2001 after a social gathering.

During a second investigation in 2007 police announced his injuries were sustained in a violent and sexual assault.

Mr Barrymore was arrested that year on suspicion of murder and rape but was released 36 hours later due to insufficient evidence.

The 64-year-old television presenter, well known for presenting gameshow Strike It Lucky in the 1980s and 1990s, is attempting to sue Essex Police over wrongful arrest.

According to revelations published in the Daily Mirror, High Court papers show police have accepted they are liable, thus admitting the former star was wrongfully arrested.

Square

Terry Lubbock, 71, who lives in a care home in Harlow due to ill-health, said: "I'm still at square one and I don't feel like we have moved on in any way."

"I haven't got any closure at all."

He added that he would not give up fighting for justice and still hopes to uncover the truth of what happened. No one has ever been convicted of an offence related to Stuart Lubbock's death.

Terry Lubbock has previously accused Mr Barrymore of not telling the whole story and in 2006 confronted the star during a public book signing.

But this week he told the Daily Mirror that he hopes Mr Barrymore will bankroll further appeals for justice to be done.

He said: "I think he should put money as a public reward for people to tell the police who was involved and what they know about my son's death.

"I've got to the stage where I don't know how much longer I've got left here. All I want before I die is justice for Stuart. I will keep up the fight until I breathe my last."

An inquest into his death heard he had ecstasy, cocaine and alcohol in his system. An open verdict was recorded.

On this latest revelation, Terry Lubbock commented: "If he is innocent then why shouldn't he sue the police?"

"But if he thinks if he clears his name he can get back on the stage I can't see that happening."

"Maybe this is one last throw of the dice for Barrymore."

Mr Barrymore has commented only on Twitter where he replied to a fan who asked what was happening this week.

He wrote: "And the answer, as much as I can say for the minute, is 'Justice'."

Essex Police has not commented as the matter remains in litigation.

Distraction burglars pretend to be police

A WOMAN in her 60s lost money, jewellery and documents when men posing as police targeted her in a distraction burglary.

Three men knocked on a door in The Downs, Harlow, around 10pm on Monday, October 24, claiming to be officers looking for a suspect they had seen jumping into the back garden.

One of the three took the victim into the garden, while the other men went upstairs, saying they were looking for the suspect.

However, the woman later discovered valuable possessions had been taken.

Detective Constable Joanna Snell, investigating officer, said: "This was a callous crime committed by a group of heartless men preying on a vulnerable victim."

Alert

"I would urge people to be alert to strangers knocking on their properties."

"Any officer, undercover or not, would always provide identification before entering a property."

"If someone you don't know knocks at your door always ask for identification – all genuine callers will have ID and won't mind you asking to see it."

"If you're still not sure, ask them to come back another time and don't feel pressured into letting someone into your home you don't want there."

The first man is described as white, around 40 years-old, 6ft tall, of skinny build and with short dark hair.

The second man is described as white, of skinny build, around 5ft 7in tall with dark hair which was shaved at the sides and slightly longer on top.

The third man is described as white, of skinny build, around 5ft 7in tall with very short dark blonde hair.

All three men were wearing black trousers and black jackets.

■ Anyone with any information is asked to contact DC Snell at Harlow Police Station on 101 or the independent crime-fighting charity Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

3,200 jobs in pipeline for enterprise zone

Board is given update on Public Health England's plans

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsexnews.co.uk

MORE than 3,000 science jobs will be bought to Harlow when a multi-million pound enterprise zone is fully opened.

The first offices, occupied by Ratheon, at Kao Park are already open and the Harlow Enterprise Zone Board met in the £200million facility for an update on the development's progress.

Public Health England (PHE) is set to bring its headquarters and national science hub to Harlow from 2021 – bringing 3,200 science jobs to the town.

The board was given a presentation by Michael Beard, PHE's head of community engagement, on the company's plans for the area.

John Keddie, chairman of the board, said: "Raytheon's relocation to Kao Park is an exciting time in the development of the Enterprise Zone and it will be the start of a major transformation of the site into a vibrant new business and technology park."

"The completion of the first phase of development at Kao Park and the commencement of work on the first data centre here shows that Harlow is already an attractive business location, which will grow further through the Science Park which has the potential to create more than 2,000 jobs."

PHE's new facility will create a world class centre of excellence for public health and life sciences.

Harlow was identified as the location for this facility because of the presence of a ready-made centre in the former GSK buildings and its location in the heart of the London Stansted Cambridge Corridor.

PHE will create job opportunities for people in Harlow and will also offer the town's businesses the chance to become part of its "supply chain".

The company will work with the enterprise zone's board to encourage other science and research businesses to locate to the area.

A spokesman for Harlow Council said: "The board also heard about progress to create a new multi million pound Science Park at the London Road North site."

"The construction of the new access road on the site is well advanced and is scheduled for completion in January 2017. Following this, work will commence to bring services to the site."

"From spring of 2017 Harlow Council's development partner, Vinci, will commence construction of the first buildings on the Science Park."

Work on the "science park masterplan" is nearing completion and will feature the provision of a cafe, gym and nursery facilities among half-a-million square feet of business space.

The board agreed that more effort now needed to be focussed on promotion and marketing to attract new business occupiers to the town.

A sub-group of board members will now work to promote the Enterprise Zone as a dynamic new business location between London and Cambridge.

Students recognised for commitment to mental health

TWO Harlow schools have been recognised for their commitment to young people's health following World Mental Health Day last month.

Longwood Primary Academy and Stewards Academy have both been nominated for awards at this year's Wellbeing in Schools Awards.

Longwood have been acknowledged for their work to ensure that mental health is perceived positively, by championing emotional resilience and finding ways to develop a positive mental health.

Similarly, Stewards Academy have been recognised for their efforts in removing the stigma often associated with mental health.

Working alongside Place2Be, a children's mental health charity, both schools have nominated ambassadors who will represent their schools at the awards ceremony later this month.

Head teacher of Stewards, Rhonda Murthar, said: "Place2Be provides specialist support in Stewards to help young people deal with a variety of issues that may impact on their well-being."

"This organisation complements the outstanding pastoral care we offer to ensure students can achieve their very best and are able to become confident and self-assured members of society."

"We are delighted to have been nominated for the prestigious Place2Be Schools Award."

Stewards Academy has worked with Place2Be for almost eight years and are their longest-standing secondary school partner.

Former pupil of Longwood Primary Academy, Cerys Kenny, 11, has been nominated in the Child Champion category for creating a workbook to help fellow pupils overcome anger as well as other emotions.

James Hollinsley, head teacher at the school, said: "We're incredibly proud of Cerys – the innovative idea that she had to help other children think about and explore their feelings will really have a lasting impact on the school and its pupils."

Cerys said: "There are no words to explain how it feels to be a finalist. I'm still shocked! It's amazing!"

Both schools will be represented at the awards ceremony in London on November 22.

Survivor honoured to receive accolade Charity work recognised

By William Mata

PARALYMPIAN Anne Wafula-Strike said she was honoured to receive an award in recognition of her charity work.

The 47-year-old, who was born in Kenya and now lives in Harlow, developed polio at the age of two.

She became the first wheelchair racer to represent an east African country when she competed in the T53 category at the Athens Olympics in 2004.

Ms Wafula-Strike became a British citizen in 2006 and won an MBE in 2014 for her work with AbleChildAfrica and her own Olympia-Wafula Foundation.

Both these organisations support and fund initiatives for disadvantaged and disabled young people through sport.

Last week she won the Play For Change Award at the TV Sports Awards 2016 bash in Monaco in recognition of her work.

Ms Wafula-Strike said: "I am honoured to accept this award as a Paralympian, especially on World Polio Day as a polio survivor.

"I would like to dedicate this award to the children at AbleChildAfrica and the Olympia-Wafula Foundation."

Earlier this year Ms Wafula-Strike, whose middle name is Olympia, was honoured at the Women for Africa Awards at Kensington Town Hall.

She also carried the Paralympic flame before the 2012 Games.

She won this latest award at The Fairmont Hotel in Monaco in a ceremony attended by former England football manager Fabio Capello, ex-Formula One boss Flavio Briatore and Italian cycling superstar Mario Cipollini.

Spanish television presenter Laura Barriales tweeted afterwards: "It's always a pleasure to support Play Change, thanks for the fantastic night."

Also on Twitter the Active Harlow campaign, run by the town council, wrote: "Congratulations Anne Wafula-Strike for winning the Play For Change Award."

"An advocate from Harlow using sport to change lives."

Gun amnesty after rise in armed crime

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsexnews.co.uk

POLICE are preparing to hold a two-week firearms amnesty after a rise in gun crime.

Figures released by Essex Police reveal the number of firearms offences in the county has risen by more than 100, from 700 in 2013/14 to 806 in the last year.

The force also seized 1,767 firearms last year – of which 1,347 were real and the rest imitation.

The amnesty will run from 8am until 5pm on Friday, November 11, and members of the public will be able to hand in guns of all sorts at eight police stations, including Harlow.

Devastating

Detective Chief Superintendent Rob Fordham said: "There has been a concerning rise in the number of offences involving firearms in Essex in the last three years – from 700 to 806.

"Guns can have a devastating impact on people's lives.

"This amnesty will give members of the public the opportunity to safely dispose of any unwanted or unlicensed firearms and ammunition safely, ensuring they do not fall into the wrong hands."

During the amnesty, anyone surrendering firearms will not face prosecution for illegal possession although the history of each weapon will be checked.

Chief Superintendent Fordham added: "Essex has many responsible licensed firearms holders, however there have been a number of changes to the law in recent years and people may be unaware of how these changes affect them.

"There may also be people out there who have inherited weapons from elderly relatives or friends that are actually not legal for them to possess.

"This amnesty gives them the opportunity to surrender the items and not be prosecuted".

And the force is encouraging the public to give up imitation firearms and BB guns in addition to legitimate weapons.

Chief Superintendent Fordham said: "Often it can be difficult to tell apart an imitation firearm from a real one, but the fear and concern felt when one is produced is just the same.

"This amnesty will help make Essex safer and reduce the chance a member of the public will come face-to-face with one".

Difficult

The weapons can be surrendered at front counters at the police stations in Basildon, Braintree, Chelmsford, Clacton, Colchester, Harlow, Grays and Southend.

But those wishing to surrender any items are advised to call ahead on 101 so they can be advised on how best to transport the item.

Members of the public can also use the 101 service to arrange for a police officer to collect the weapon.

Ghostbuster fun at Water Gardens

THE car from 1984 blockbuster Ghostbusters was on display at The Water Gardens over the Halloween weekend.

Ecto 1 helped keep the Harlow shopping centre ghoulish and was paraded by Essex Ghostbusters, a group who dress up as the film's characters for parties.

Shoppers took pictures inside of the car which was positioned between Greggs and Esquires.

Beryl Murphy, The Water Gardens manager, said: "It was a fantastic Halloween weekend at the centre.

"It was great to see so many shoppers in fancy dress enjoying the atmosphere and the iconic Ghostbuster car.

"Also, a big thank you to Essex Ghostbusters for adding some great entertainment to the day."

Three towns stage events as run around initiative expands further

By William Mata and Narbeh Minassian

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RESIDENTS were put through their paces in simultaneous endurance events held in three towns.

Organiser Your Town staged a run in Harlow, a bike ride through Potters Bar and a walk around Hoddesdon on Sunday, with 100 attending each.

Run, Walk and Ride 100 was the organisation's first venture outside of Hoddesdon, where annual event Give Your Town the Run Around is held.

Founder Mark White, 33, said: "We were really supported by the communities and I think this is the start of something."

"Your Town is known for Give Your Town the Run Around but it was good to see this idea come to life."

"We want to bring communities together and this is a way for people to do their normal exercises, just with other people."

"We are hoping to expand a future event to six towns early next year but we need communities to help us."

"I believe this has huge potential but we cannot do it alone."

The events were a pilot to gauge how successful cross-town initiatives like this can be and how Your Town can move forward.

The event was held the day after the popular Harlow parkrun and started and finished in the town centre.

Harlow councillor and Active Harlow ambassador Karen Clempner, who has been instrumental in bringing the event to the town, was among those taking part.

Mr White also praised event sponsor Alto Digital for its support.

He added: "We were really well supported by the Harlow community and we are grateful for that."

"We are looking to have more presence in the town."

Students inspired by German play

SECONDARY school students enjoyed a performance of German play Mother Courage and her Children at Harlow Playhouse.

The Bertolt Brecht play set in 17th century Europe is considered one of the best dramas written in the 20th century and inspired students of Stewards Academy, in Parnall Road, Harlow.

Di Johnson, head of performing arts, said: "It is so important that students engage with a range of theatrical experiences and are open to different styles of performance. "We are lucky to have access to high quality performances in our local theatre."

The play is set during the 30

Years War and challenged students to think about the purpose and consequence of such conflict.

One pupil, who did not wish to be named, said: "I really enjoyed Mother Courage because it had a tense storyline as well as excellent actors who communicated with the audience."

IN BRIEF

Teen bailed over death

A 15-YEAR-OLD boy arrested on suspicion of murder following Arkadiusz Jozwik's death has been bailed to November 21.

The teenager, who cannot be named for legal reasons, was due to return to Harlow Police Station this week but will wait to hear his fate as investigations continue.

Mr Jozwik, 40, was attacked on August 27 in The Stow, Harlow, and died two days later in Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge from injuries sustained.

Essex Police arrested six youths, aged 15 and 16, on August 28 and 29 but five were released on October 6 due to insufficient evidence.

Ivy celebrates 100 years with a family gathering

Care home resident more than happy on birthday

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A WOMAN born during the First World War celebrated her 100th birthday this week.

Mother-of-four Ivy Edmonston became a centenarian on Monday and family joined her at Ashlyn Care Centre, Vicarage Wood, Harlow, to wish her many happy returns.

Her daughter Pauline Varcoe, 77, said: "She was quite pleased to turn 100."

"We were teasing her about it in the weeks leading up."

"We were saying 'you're going to be 99', but she said, 'no I am going to be 100'."

"She was pleased to reach it."

Mrs Edmonston is the oldest of four children and had three brothers, all of whom have now sadly passed away.

She spent much of her early life in North London and worked for Walthamstow company JB's as a furniture polisher.

This was where she met her second husband John and the pair got married in 1950 and moved to Harlow on Christmas Eve in 1956, when the town was in its infancy.

Mrs Varcoe, of Northbrooks, Harlow, is the oldest child. Mrs Edmonston has two sons George, 72, and Tony, 65, as well as second daughter Julie Rigarlarsord, 73.

Before she married John she raised the younger three children on her own for three years before the pair had Tony.

She also has five grandchildren, Susan, Ray, Dawn, Andrew and Karen.

She also has six great grandchildren.

John, who passed away 21 years ago, was a soldier in the Second World War and was injured in battle.

Mrs Varcoe said her secret to long life is down to her work ethic and healthy diet.

"She has always been a hard worker," added Mrs Varcoe.

"She eats very well and she would always go to the town all her life."

"She had a friend and they used to go away on holiday together."

She added: "She is brilliant and would do anything for anyone."

Ashlyn Care Centre has been Mrs Edmonston's home for the past two years but she previously lived in Little Grove Field, The

Stow and Northbrooks, Harlow.

In Harlow she worked for several years for the Dorstel Press, working in the print department.

Her 100th birthday saw her receive a card from the Queen while some of her family members came to visit on Friday.

Harlow Council chairman Edna Stevens also attended to express her best wishes.

On Sunday she was taken out to Canons Brook Golf Club, Elizabeth Way, Harlow, for another knees up.

Mrs Varcoe continued: "She loved every minute of it and it was a brilliant day."

"I would like to thank Ashlyn staff for all the care they give to mum."

Ashlyn offers accommodation for 60 people and can offer dementia care for 27 of those.

IN BRIEF

Volunteers sad at charity theft

JEWELLERY and CDs were stolen from RSPCA charity shop in The Stow leaving volunteers feeling unhappy.

Essex Police is investigating the suspected theft which happened at 3.10pm on Tuesday, October 25.

Wendy Catton, 30, chairman of Stort Valley RSPCA, said volunteers at the Harlow shop found a donated necklace was missing.

She said: "It is a shame. Everything we raise goes towards animals in our care."

"To think that something has been donated and someone felt the need to steal it is sad."

Tractor rescue

FIREFIGHTERS rescued a man after his tractor overturned into a ditch.

The incident occurred on Faggotters Lane, Harlow, on October 28.

■ EDUCATION

What is learned is important

I WAS depressed to read that the CEO of Burnt Mill Academy believes that great schools put emphasis on learning lots of information about a subject, rather than worrying excessively about the "skills" needed to dig out that information.

She appears to wish to reproduce such schools here.

Her approach is based on a number of false assumptions, which have beset British secondary education.

1. That what is important is what is taught rather than what is actually learnt.

2. That people learn primarily from schools and that schools are essentially providers of information. This has never been true, and in a data/information world with the internet, information technology, advertising, and television, is less true than ever before.

3. That the aim of education is to simply present information producing more informed and perhaps cleverer people, rather than develop skills and values which make them wiser.

4. That testing reveals what children have learnt whereas it simply reveals what has been retained of that part of what has been taught which is examined, and ignores the variety of learning that has actually taken place.

The purpose of education should be to assist people in their lifelong learning and to aim to encourage wisdom and not simply cleverness.

What is important is not what is taught but what is learned.

Most people gain information primarily outside schools and the education system and much of this is actually unconscious and needs critical challenging.

It is not primarily the child who needs testing but the information with which the child is bombarded.

What is most needed is not more information but the ability to readily access information, and to test, utilise, practise, and

■ SAFETY

Changes will create danger

I HAVE just been reading the article 'What is the price of a child's life' (Star, October 20) and would like to make a comment.

Due to Essex County Council, Harlow Council and the North Essex Parking Partnership (and I am told the school were involved in the process) they are this week putting new parking restrictions into place on Hodings Road that are actually making things more dangerous for the children going to and from the school.

I lived along that road for a number of years and actually attended the school when it was known as Rivermill School and my parents still live on the bend.

Today they are making the road leading up the hill towards the Willow Beauty Public House a 'no parking zone' by painting double yellow lines.

The cars that have always been parked in this location actually act as a traffic calming measure but by preventing the parking traffic will now be able to flow more freely and at a faster speed coming down the hill onto the bend which will be a hazard to any children walking in that direction as it will probably result in cars taking the bend too fast and mounting the pavement.

They are also introducing 'limited waiting time' on the opposite side of the road instead which will result in traffic travelling down the hill having to drive on the opposite side of the road if cars are parked during the hours allowed and heading straight into a blind bend.

Ninety-nine per cent of cars travelling up the hill cut the corner so this is another accident waiting to happen.

Apart from the safety aspect of the children, it also means that the residents living along the front of Rivermill will not be able to receive visitors as there is to be no replacement parking put into place.

Nor will they be able to receive deliveries of any kind as there is also going to be a no loading or unloading rule.

I spoke with a representative of Harlow Council about my concerns, especially as my father has to have a nurse visit him weekly, and was advised that she would be able to apply for a special permit at a cost.

Another sign of the greed of the Council. Isn't the NHS stretched enough without having to pay for permits to visit patients!

So apart from the parents' concern for their children's safety directly outside the school, perhaps somebody should raise concerns about the rest of the road and the impact that the new road plans are having on the residents and how it is going to affect their lives.

Sylvia Mann

Credit must go to council

I'D like to thank the Harlow Star for their article concerning the lack of safety measures outside of my school.

It is one that I have received numerous feedback from and has certainly engaged the community in the Rivermill area.

Although we as a school community feel that we have been sidelined on this issue by county councillors whose ultimate responsibility it is to agree and organise the safety infrastructure along Hodings road, I would like to pay due credit to Harlow Council, in particular Mr Joe McGill, who engaged in dialogue with the school back in September 2015 when we opened.

This led to double yellow lines to stop cars parking on the kerb outside of the school and has now provided two areas for parents to access when dropping off and picking up their children.

In addition Mr McGill has been highly informative in providing information on next steps for the school on how we can bring the situation to an acceptable conclusion.

This is information we would not have known otherwise and for this the school is indeed grateful.

NOW the Post Office is moving to Smiths making that part of the town more of a ghost town, isn't it about time the mobility scooter unit is moved to the Water Gardens or the Harvey Centre?

Four weeks to go ho ho until festive charity run

Event needs fundraisers

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RUNNERS and marshals are still needed with St Clare Hospice's Santa Dash just four weeks away.

The Hastingwood-based charity provides free care and support for people with terminal or life limiting illnesses.

But with limited NHS funding, events such as the Santa Dash, on Sunday, December 4, are crucial to keeping their service running.

St Clare Hospice is hoping the five kilometre and one mile runs, which begin at The Water Gardens, Harlow, can generate £10,000.

Jade Clarke, 23, event organiser, said: "Everyone at St Clare is very excited the festive season is back and we get to host our fantastic Santa Dash event."

"The four-week countdown has begun so make sure that you get in contact and book your places soon."

"We are hoping to raise a minimum of £10,000 at this year's Santa Dash to help provide our care over the Christmas period."

"Make sure to come along and help support your local hospice."

Hundreds of fundraisers dressed as Father Christmas or an elf will run through the town centre and the longer event will see runners head into Harlow Town Park.

Miss Clarke added: "The fundraising office is currently full of Santa suits, elf hats and all things Christmassy."

"We are ready for everyone to get dressed up on the day to spread Christmas cheer all around Harlow."

"We would like to encourage you to get all your friends and family involved because the more Santas there are on the day the more families we can help support, not just on Christmas Day, but throughout the year."

The hospice welcomed hundreds for their Midnight Walk over the summer and hope to better the success next month.

Discount

Entries cost £12 for adults and £2.50 for children and need to be made before Wednesday, November 30 to qualify for the discount. On the day it will cost £15 and £5 respectively.

Each booking includes a free Santa suit for adults and elf hat for children. To enter visit www.stclarehospice.org.uk

MEET Puan – she has been named the oldest living Sumatran orangutan in the world by the Guinness Book of World Records. While Sumatran orangutans usually live until the age of 50, Puan is estimated to be about 60 years old.

Puan remains at Perth Zoo after being given as a gift in 1968 by a Malaysian sultan. During her time in Australia, Puan has become a mother, grandmother and great-grandmother. Puan loves to eat and is said to stamp her feet if her food does not get to her quick enough. Apart from some arthritis, Puan is in good health for her age and is known for her shiny coat. Puan celebrated her birthday with a special breakfast made up of a Malaysian fruit called rambutan.

£12m upgrade brings a fresh look to health unit

New facilities introduced as first phase of development completed

By William Mata

william.mata@hertssexnews.co.uk

PHASE one of much-needed improvements to a mental health centre alongside Princess Alexandra Hospital have been completed.

The £12million upgrade was required to bring the 1960s-built Derwent Centre, in Hamstel Road, Harlow, up to date.

Works were completed while the unit was still functioning.

Christopher Butler, interim chief executive of North Essex Partnership University NHS Foundation Trust (NEP), said: "The Derwent Centre has been transformed beyond recognition.

"It is much more welcoming and modern, which I hope will contribute to our patients' recovery.

"A major improvement is our use of modern safety furniture, fixtures and fittings throughout the newly refurbished centre.

"There is more work to be done with phases two and three of the project.

"I hope that our patients and staff will enjoy living and working in their new environment."

The Chelmer Ward, which

NEW HOME: The Derwent Centre in Harlow is being redeveloped offers 16 beds for female patients, was completely rebuilt and now is a bright, colourful and spacious environment with ensuite bedrooms, a lounge and therapy rooms.

There is also a large spacious hub and six computer work stations while there is also an enclosed outdoor garden within the hub on the first floor.

Mr Butler continued: "It was challenging to keep the hospital running whilst such a major refurbishment was going on.

"It was difficult, but I must say I have been truly impressed with how well our patients and staff have coped with all the building work and I really want to thank them for their patience."

Phase two of the refurbishment programme has already started and this will see the Stort Ward, a male only ward with 17 bedrooms, rebuilt by May 2017.

Phase three of the programme will bring about the provision of a new reception and a health based Place of Safety.

This is a facility where people who are brought in as an emergency by the police can stay for a brief period until they are assessed.

The total cost of the project is expected to be around £18million.

Anger over Harlow North plan

BITTER words were exchanged during a debate on an anti-development group opposing 'Harlow North' with one councillor saying the only good thing about Harlow was leaving it.

Temper flared at Much Hadham Parish Council during a debate on support for the Stop Harlow North campaign group.

Councillor Ken Twort said: "I don't like Harlow and the only good thing about Harlow is leaving it."

Councillor Blaise Morris said: "We live here and we know what hospital is closest to us, the Princess Alexandra Hospital.

"That hospital is in special measures. If we build another 20,000 homes in East Herts we won't be able to go to Princess Alexandra.

"There is no appropriate health care in this area.

He cited the move of stroke care to a hospital in East London from Princess Alexandra as evidence that medical care wasn't suitable for its current population, let alone thousands more houses.

The motion, which was proposed by Mr Morris, called on unconditional support for the group to stop thousands of homes being built in the area.

Councillor Ian Hunt opposed the motion saying: "Stop Harlow North is an organisation in the shadows.

"The motion suggests unconditional support to the group.

"Stop Harlow North is a throwback to when protest groups were just yelling a lot.

"To give our support to such a shadowy organisation is not a good idea."

The local plan for East Herts has seen the area allocated at least 3,000 homes while other councillors saying there was potential for thousands more in the area north of Harlow.

Councillor William Compton said: "The councillor says they work in the shadows and we don't know their aims.

"Minutes are available on request but you don't show your hand to the enemy."

The former secretary of Stop Harlow North was also at the meeting and he said it was sad that the council were no longer supporting the group.

Stop Harlow North is a campaign group that has been active along the Hertfordshire and Essex border to stop development north of Harlow, dubbed Harlow North.

Woman assaulted on her walk home

A PERVERT has been convicted of taking up-skirt photographs of women at a train station and sexually assaulting a Harlow mother as she was on her way home.

Marvin McKenzie, 29, had denied the offence.

Chelmsford Crown Court was told the incident happened as the 38-year-old woman, who for legal reasons cannot be named, walked home from Harlow Town station late at night on March 17.

After McKenzie was found guilty it was revealed that he had chained up and dragged around a previous girlfriend in 2008 and given an indeterminate jail sentence for causing grievous bodily harm.

McKenzie, who is on a lifelong licence, was recalled to prison after the Harlow assault.

He had been living in a probation hostel in East London.

The jury returned guilty verdicts after three and a half hours on the sexual assault and on four of the five charges of outraging public decency by attempting to point a camera up women's skirts.

Judge Christopher Morgan directed a not guilty verdict on the fifth charge.

He told McKenzie: "You can expect nothing less than an extended period in custody."

MPs speak on new push for voting reform

Potential for change rejected by Tories

By Sam Meadows

sam.meadows@hertsexnews.co.uk

A NEW push for voting reform has been dismissed by MPs in Essex and Hertfordshire.

Petitions calling for elections by proportional representation – the system whereby the government is formed based on how many votes each party receives – gained more than 500,000 signatures.

In the 2011 referendum the UK voted in favour of keeping the current system, rejecting the system known as alternative vote (AV).

But campaigners argue the AV system is too complicated and are continuing to push for PR.

The MPs who responded to a request for comment unanimously rejected the idea of PR.

Harlow's Robert Halfon, pictured, said 73.59 per cent of the town had voted against AV.

He added: "We held a referendum only a few years ago in 2011 and the result was that the public overwhelmingly wanted to keep the current First Past the Post system. I think we should respect the views of the public."

Sir Alan Haselhurst, the MP for Saffron Walden, said the link between MPs and their constituents was very important.

He added: "There is scant evidence in my mailbox for any enthusiasm for the matter to be reopened.

"A pure system of proportional representation does away with parliamentary constituencies with an identifiable Member of Parliament to whom people can turn."

Broxbourne's MP Charles Walker said: "We had a referendum in 2011 on the voting system and by a margin of 2 to 1 the public chose to remain with first past the post. Therefore, I do not envisage this issue being revisited again for another two decades or more."

The current First-Past-The-Post system – whereby governments are formed based on constituency wins – is lauded for creating strong majority governments.

But smaller parties, such as the Greens and Ukip, argue it penalises them – they gained just two seats on the back of 5million votes in 2015.

SPOOKY FUN: Staff from New Era Fuels with patients and staff of Dolphin Ward at Princess Alexandra

Hospital bringing Halloween cheer

HALLOWEEN was enjoyed by children at Princess Alexandra Hospital with staff ensuring they would not miss out.

Youngsters in the 20-bed Dolphin Ward of the centre in Hamlet Road, Harlow, were visited by wizards and spooks to help spread some cheer.

Helen Weaving, Dolphin Ward manager, said: "Patients in our ward might be tiny tots or they may be older children but being in hospital is stressful at any age."

"We were keen to make their stay more pleasant."

"So our staff decorated the ward in a Halloween theme, with help from our two play leaders, who provided some great decoration."

"We would like to say a huge thank you to Harlow business New Era Fuels to offer its help and make this a memorable event for everyone on the ward."

Which are the best buildings in town?

By William Mata

william.mata@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE town's best designed residential and non-residential buildings will be crowned from a shortlist revealed this week.

Six buildings in each category have been put forward for The Architectural Design Awards after judges received more than 150 public nominations in October.

The next round of voting has now begun with residents having until November 30 to cast their vote which will influence the decision of a judging panel.

Winners will be announced at a ceremony in January as part of event organiser Harlow Civic Society's annual general meeting.

Shortlist

The non-residential shortlist comprises: The Owens-Illinois Building, Edinburgh Way (designed by The Archer Partnership) Building C, Harlow College, Velizy Avenue (AD Architects), Harlow Playhouse, Playhouse Square (Harlow Design Group), Thomas More Church, Hodings Road (Burlles, Newton and Partners) the Pearson Building, Edinburgh Way (Conran Roche) and Passmores Academy, Tracys Road (Jestico and Whiles).

Despite some suggesting on social media that The Square should be considered, the Fourth Avenue music venue did not make the list.

The residential shortlist contains: 3-12 and 161-165 Orchard Croft (Sir Frederick Gibberd), 56-62 The Chase (PCKO Architects), 37-41 Old Orchard (Clifford

BLOOMING: Rose Crescent in Harlow is on the residential shortlist

Culpin and Partners), 19-32 Vince Dunn Mews (PRP Architects) 172-204 Pennymead (Norman and Dawbarn) and 1-9 Rose Crescent (Sheppard Robson).

Paul McLintic, secretary of Harlow Civic Society, considered it hard process whittling it down.

He said: "There are so many important and well known buildings in Harlow that, in getting down to our shortlists, we have had to leave out buildings that some may feel are more deserving."

"That's understandable as views will inevitably differ and we wish to create discussion and stimulate thought about what is beautiful and what makes the town work from an architectural point of view. With this in mind we have picked what we feel is the best cross-section of six buildings in each category."

SIMEON'S Watch 5 November
5pm A Christmas Play Produced by the Theatre Group Riding Lights.
Simeon's Watch tells the story of a farming family who find hope in all the messiness of life. Rina, a teenage daughter is growing up fast and ready to race ahead. By contrast, her much loved grandad, Simeon, is slowing down and despite his increasing struggle with dementia, he's waiting for something important that no one can understand. Somewhere in the middle is his daughter, Leah, trying to hold it all together for her dad and her daughter. It's a touching story and some of it is sad but it's also funny and uplifting. Riding Lights are very well known for taking a good look at the big challenges of our lives and finding the cracks where the light gets in.
They have spent two years researching this story. Mixed in with the sense of loss that many people feel, Riding Lights has heard notes of love and intimacy and humour that are there too. You'll find them threaded through this lovely story. Performed at Letchworth Garden City Church,
Icknield Way, Letchworth, SG6 1EF
Tickets available from Letchworth

How to play and display

A casually placed throw provides the balance to the single cupboard and the naturally non-symmetrical chaise longue. The throw is in the glorious Angelique fabric from Sanderson

This dining room scene, featuring Abbeville fabric from the Fabienne collection by Sanderson, is beautifully symmetrical and calming

When you see those fabulous images of rooms to die for in glossy magazines and wonder how to achieve them, the last thing you tend to think about is how to display all those things that make a space into a your room.

These are things like pictures and books, what is coyly termed 'decorative accessories', plants and cushions, candlesticks and the occasional sculpture.

But knowing how to display these items is both a final touch and a great unifier, pulling together all those elements you've thought about so much.

If someone asks me to help make the most of their space without doing a major makeover it's the first thing I look at. Well, maybe the second, I straighten the pictures first of all, but that's my particular foible. And there are some very simple 'rules' behind it.

The first one is actually the founding rule of all good interior design – relationships. It's not about having the perfect or most beautiful set of things, in fact you can have that and still have an unsatisfyingly sterile space, it's all about how things work together. Most of us are stuck with things we wouldn't necessarily have chosen in an ideal world – we keep Great Aunt Mabel's pottery shepherdess because we remember playing with it as a child and it reminds us of her; we bought that IKEA picture five years ago because we couldn't afford original art; we keep that rather garish pot even though our taste has evolved, out of a dislike of throwing things away or sheer apathy.

All of which is okay and all these things can be displayed to great advantage if you work out how things relate to each other.

The key here is to find a theme. Colour is the easiest: grouping a set of objects together entirely based on the fact that they share a colour can be enough to make a real statement. This can work particularly well for small objects, which on their own can seem visually messy, but assume coherence and importance when massed together.

Theme

As for a theme, this can be obvious, so for example, two Art Deco sculptures or a group of mid-century vases, or something more subtle – it could be texture, two items that are evidently handmade, floral items, abstract art. The best way to check this out is to have a play with them. Sometimes taking a photograph and looking at that rather than the reality helps – it provides a frame and the distance from the real thing helps you see it objectively.

After working out what the relationships are, the next thing is how to arrange your items, and there are a couple of easy approaches here. Firstly, symmetry. We human beings love symmetry in all its manifestations, it satisfies a basic sense of order and control, and controlling our environment is something we aim for constantly.

This eclectic mix of objects is held together by the colour blue – I love the highlight note provided by the butterflies. Photograph courtesy of Sanderson

So, candlesticks at each side of a mantelpiece, a pair of identical figurines placed equidistantly on a sideboard, a row of identical items, these are easy wins. A second is hierarchy, where items at the bottom are wider than items at the top – I have been known to break out in hysterics when seeing a painting placed above a less wide table, oh the horror of it!

This I think is about feeling grounded and confident – we don't like things looming above us, it's potentially threatening. An absolute classic interior design solution that combines these two rules that you can spot everywhere – check out hotel lobbies and landings – is a console table with a lamp at each end and a large picture or mirror centred above the table. It always looks good, pulled together and grounded.

Bedrooms are also good places to do this – unless you have a huge bedroom, the bed always dominates and you can tame this with a pair of lamps on each bedside table and either a large head board or a picture above the bed that is taller than the lamps. I call this the truncated triangle and it works wherever you employ it. The main thing to remember here is that it needs strict maintenance – moving one item out of kilter draws all the attention, so what you see is the misalignment, not your beautiful display.

The second approach is to break the rules. And of course, as ever when breaking a rule successfully, you need to have mastered the rule itself. Here it is about achieving satisfaction through visual balance. This is ultimately more interesting and satisfying than symmetry. Too much symmetry can feel static, formal and even boring and ever so slightly repressed.

So, in the interests of developing our freedom loving, boho, independent characteristics, working on achieving visual balance is evidently the way to go. This is about 'weighting' objects – a red one will have more weight than a soft dove grey one, even if they are identical in every other respect, a tall object can be balanced by a wider shorter object.

Think of that example above, of a console table with lamps and a large picture: you can achieve balance in a more interesting way by placing both lamps at one end of the console and moving the picture to sit at the other end. Exactly where depends on the size and visual strength of all these items and you can develop your expertise here by playing with the placement, standing back and seeing at what point it feels uncomfortable.

Another element to this approach is slight disorder, which attracts the eye and so has more visual weight than order. So, a symmetrical arrangement of a cushion at each end of a sofa, with a throw centred over the back is attractive, but a pair of cushions at one end, with a throw negligently draped over the arm or far seat is satisfying, and also more confident and assured than the first approach.

As with all things, there are also trends and fashions to contend with too. Currently a trend that is not going away is over-scale items. This plays with visual weight and our sense of proportion. It can add wit and humour to our spaces.

And a final note – do move items around every now and again. You'll see them afresh and appreciate them all over again

Picture-perfect villa in Spain

If the high-flying modernist white arches and infinity pool of this unusual circular Spanish villa near the town of Denia on the Costa Blanca seem familiar, then it's not surprising.

The hill-top property featured in the 2013 film The Counselor directed by Ridley Scott and starring Michael Fassbender as a corrupt 'counselor' or lawyer who gets in over his head during a Mexican-cartel drug deal.

The film's other stars include Penelope Cruz, Cameron Diaz, Javier Bardem and Brad Pitt.

Planned filming was halted for several weeks during the summer of 2012 in the US, Spain and London following the death of Ridley's brother Tony, who the film is dedicated to.

The nine-bedroom property features in the film as the home of Westray, one of the criminals involved in the drug deal and where the counselor is told of the risks involved in dealing with Mexican drug cartels.

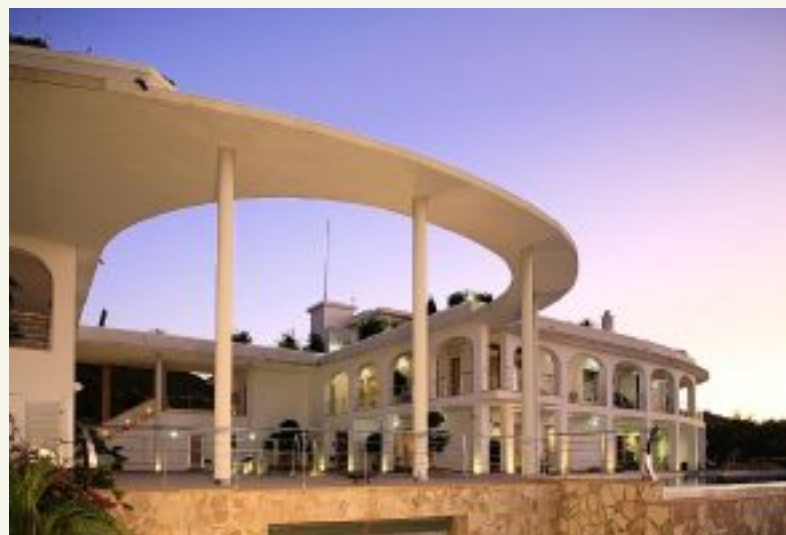

In real life, the property could star in its own theatrical production. It's built in two halves connected by a circle of white columns holding up a narrow roof.

It also comes with an unusual supporting cast including a huge underground spa, a large garage (currently stuffed with supercars), billiard room, 'Zen Garden', a Buddha overlooking the indoor pool and a cinema room featuring life-size models of comedians Laurel and Hardy. But best of all, the property offers stunning 180 degree views over the coast. The property is for sale at 4,680,000 Euros.

Just don't ask for a ginger ale

CHRIS Evans' short tenure at Top Gear this year is a period of his life he'd probably prefer to put behind him.

Despite giving the show his 'best shot' the rebellious redhead decided to quit the show after just one series.

But when he returned to his local pub to commiserate over a pint, at least he didn't have to queue for long at the bar as he sank a few with celebrity mates such as Gary Barlow, Tom Jones and Paloma Faith.

Because the Radio 2 DJ, along with manager Camilla Hensen, owns the pub. The pair bought The Mulberry pub in the Surrey village of Chiddingfold in 2006 and not long after that Evans moved into the village.

The freehold of the pub is now for sale for £1.15 million through agent Fleurets.com and comes with a restaurant, lounge bar, large patio, verandas on three sides, three en-suite B&B rooms and a four-bedroom home for the landlord or lady to live in.

Evans has form when it comes to pubs. When at the height of his fame, Evans used the millions he pocketed from the sale of Virgin Radio to buy up several pubs

Also, in 2007 he bought the Lickhold Inn near Midhurst in West Sussex for £1 million and, in the same year, the Newbridge Inn at Tredunnoch, near Usk in Wales, for £900,000.

Where Marley's legend lives on ACTRESS, film maker and photographer Esther Anderson is best known as Bob Marley's girlfriend during the 1970s. But her talents stretch far beyond that.

The Jamaican-born artist has appeared in films with A-list Hollywood stars including the late Sir John Mills, Sidney Poitier and Sammy Davis Junior, appeared in 1960s TV series The Avengers, launched Island Records with Chris Blackwell and co-wrote several Wailers songs including I Shot the Sheriff and Get up, Stand up.

As if all that wasn't enough,

Anderson is also a celebrated photographer and her pictures of Bob Dylan, Marlon Brando, Denzel Washington and the Prince of Wales are all still much in evidence today.

She's also hard at work now and recently wrote, produced and directed a critically acclaimed documentary about Bob Marley called Making of a Legend.

The 70-year-old continues to live and work both in London and Paris but also has a home in Cornwall. It's a four-bedroom semi-detached house overlooking Bodmin Moor in the small hamlet of Trenthorne, after which her film company is named.

Anderson's house was built during the 16th century and features an original granite fireplace with a bread oven, as well as a water supply from a local spring.

The property is now for sale at £525,000 through agent Humberts, which says that Anderson has been using the property most recently to archive her photos.

SMOOTH SPORTBACK

TESTED Audi A3 Sportback 2.0 TDI S line

By Enda Mullen

Audi's A3 Sportback is a car that evolved out of the original A3 design blueprint and was arguably something of a spin-off – though nowadays it's pretty much the mainstream as far as the A3 range is concerned.

Once upon a time there were both three and five-door A3s and when the Sportback came along it was kind of like an A3 plus.

I recall driving one for the first time and being impressed with just how much extra versatility and practicality it offered over standard models.

Essentially it was a stepping stone between the A3 and the A4, offering an affordable family car with those famous sought-after four rings on the grille.

The A3 range has recently had something of a makeover with some of the key changes being far more standard kit and the ability to be ever more connected.

The Sportback is now the standard five-door model, with the range also featuring a three-door hatch, a cabriolet and a saloon.

Exterior changes to the A3 are minimal, in line with Audi's mastery of evolution over revolution.

Some might say Audi is over cautious with such a design philosophy but it's proved a winning formula so far, so why mess with it.

The most recent facelift is arguably more about giving customers more for their money and added interior features on all models include cruise control, auto lights and wipers and a multi-function steering wheel.

It's possible to get an A3 for under £20,000 (just) with the upgraded range starting at £19,365 for a three-door hatch with a 1.0-litre petrol engine in SE trim.

The connected technology that is one of the key selling points in the new models not surprisingly involves moving somewhat further up the range.

Audi is most excited about its 'digital cockpit' which consists of a high definition screen replacing conventional dials.

In terms of technology I've often wondered how long it will be before all cars come with sat nav as standard and with the latest A3 that isn't far off – only SE models don't come equipped with it.

There are three trim levels – SE, Sport and S line and a choice of six engines, all of which are either new to the A3 or heavily revised.

For most it will probably be a choice between the 148bhp 2.0-litre diesel fitted to this car or the 120bhp 1.4-litre petrol unit, though there's also a more powerful version of the 2.0-litre diesel available.

Traditionally most might have plumped for diesel over petrol but the balance of power really is shifting with the latest small but powerful and efficient petrol engines really giving diesel a run for the money.

From an economic point of view there's a strong argument for the 1.4-litre petrol.

Choose the diesel and you'll fork out substantially more initially, as well as paying higher insurance costs.

Added to that from a handling and performance point of view the diesel engine is significantly heavier than the petrol unit.

Other engine options include the Volkswagen Group's impressive 1.0-litre three-cylinder petrol engine and a new 2.0-litre 190bhp petrol unit. There's also a 1.6-litre diesel.

That said there's no doubting that the Sportback with the 2.0-litre diesel in S line trim is a small car with a very big attitude and a seriously grown-up feel.

Audi still leads the way in terms of in-car ergonomics, something that's reflected in finishing, instrumentation, switchgear and quality across the board.

The cabin really is an extraordinarily comfortable place to be – the kind of environment that makes pretty much any journey, long or short, a real pleasure.

If you're in the business of making that journey even more pleasurable and enjoying some home comforts another really great feature is Audi's 'jukebox' offering 10GB of hard drive memory for music, effectively giving you the opportunity to listen to every album you've ever owned.

This car offered an eclectic mix of music old and new on its jukebox and all the members of the family enjoyed exploring it to see what musical gems could be discovered – an experience enhanced by exemplary sound quality.

In terms of practicality the Sportback is decent enough, though perhaps not as spacious as one might expect. Rear seat passengers probably have just about enough room and while the 380-litre boot is big enough for most everyday needs it's only 15 litres more space than is offered in the three-door.

Combining smooth and serene ride quality with handling that offers just enough to delight is a real Sportback strength though. Throw in well-weighted steering and a super-smooth and slick gearbox and as a driver's car the latest A3 Sportback comes up trumps in pretty much every respect.

Stalley kicks Harlow to fourth home win

League leaders Wanstead tamed as Reds hit summit

London & South East
Division Three North East

Harlow	25
Wanstead	17

By Matt Storey

matt.storey@hertssexnews.co.uk

TEN points from the boot of Ross Stalley helped Harlow extend their unbeaten home record to four games on Saturday.

They beat league leaders Wanstead 25-17 at Rams Gorse to stay second in London and South East Division Three North West.

The victory puts them level on points with new leaders Southwold, who have a better points difference, but Harlow have a game in hand over the men from Suffolk.

The hosts were never comfortable against their Essex rivals, but always held the lead in a tight game.

The Redmen, playing down the hill in the first half, started strongly and immediately took the initiative.

With Stalley replacing the injured Danny Smith at fly-half, the backs moved the ball wide to put Ryan McGlone clear to score in the corner.

Foothold

Harlow continued to put pressure on the Wanstead defence and eventually won a penalty under the posts.

It was converted by Stalley to make the score 8-0 after ten minutes.

At this point, Wanstead started to gain a foothold in the game and forced a kickable penalty to the right of the posts.

The kick fell short but Harlow allowed the ball to bounce and it was seized upon by Wanstead's left winger, who touched the ball down and the conversion was successful.

However, Harlow were immediately back on the attack and forced another penalty which was expertly converted by Stalley.

Harlow began to exert some real pressure and Wanstead's discipline began to desert them.

After a series of high tackles, the away team's winger was sin-binned after catching Harlow full-back Rob Mackie around the head.

Harlow immediately took advantage of the extra man, forcing Wanstead back into their own 22.

A good chase from the pack saw Shaun Roberts charge down the clearance kick and offload to Andrew Quinn for a try, which was converted by Stalley.

A late penalty from Wanstead made the score 18-10 at half-time.

The visitors started the second half well, keeping the ball tight and driving through the centre of the Harlow defence.

Their offloading game kept the ball alive at the tackle and ensured Harlow were often on the back foot.

This approach paid dividends and Wanstead eventually scored a converted try under the posts to make the score 18-17 with 30 minutes to go.

But Harlow showed great spirit and determination to take back control of the game.

Good territorial kicking from Charlie Woodington and Stalley meant Wanstead were forced to play from deep.

With good defence, Harlow were able to force turnovers and eventually Michael Weston scored Harlow's third try. Another Stalley conversion made the final score 25-17.

Harlow are away to bottom club Ilford Wanderers next week.

IN BRIEF

Boxer starts season well

BOXING: Ladyshott Gym-based boxer Tommy Rogerson began his season with a convincing win for Harlow ABC.

The 15-year-old was the unanimous winner in front of a sold out crowd at the Holiday Inn in Norwich.

He was up against Ralph Cohen of Canvey ABC, with the fight having three, two minute rounds.

Just 18 seconds into the fight Rogerson had the taller Cohen on the floor from a smart left hook. The Harlow boxer was sharp to counter the low hand style of Cohen and scored well.

In round three, Cohen was tiring and began to drop his hands and hold on to stop the barrage of punches from Rogerson.

The judges all had Rogerson as the winner and coach Paul Allen was delighted with the youngster's performance.

Kinney racks up the miles

RUNNING: Andy Kinney continued his international marathon action, running in the Marine Corps Marathon in Washington DC.

The Harlow Running Club member finished the route in 5hr 47min 11sec, after running in Venice and Kiev in recent weeks.

Meanwhile at the Luton Half Marathon, Rob Lowe finished in sixth place out of 626 finishers, and first V40, in a fantastic 1:19:20, just 20 seconds outside his personal best time.

At the Stort 30, Martyn Coulter finished in 4:38:38 and Mark Moulds in 5:31:36.

Debut joy for Sophie

ATHLETICS: Strong displays at the Essex County League meet at Hylands Park have seen three young Harlow AC members selected for the county squads.

In her debut cross-country race for the club, Sophie Magson came fourth in the U13 girls 3K race, with a time of 10min 19sec.

Lewis Harknett and Savanna Sirkett were also selected, as they continued their good form in the U17 men's and U15 women's sections.

Harknett ran the 6K men's race in 19:23 and Sirkett the 4K women's in 12:50. In total 22 Harlow youngsters ran.

KHALE DA COSTA continued his fine start to his Harlow Town career by netting the only goal in the FA Trophy win at Uxbridge.

The Hawks have been drawn away to Brightlingsea Regent in the second round qualifying after the 1-0 victory.

Da Costa's goal came after just ten minutes and proved to be enough, despite the hosts mounting a fight back in the second half.

Boss Danny Chapman felt his side should have put the game to bed by half-time.

He said: "The main thing is we're through, 100 per cent."

"There's always the fear of a banana skin, when you're playing a team from the league below, but we could have been three or four up at the break."

"They came at us second half and gave it a good go, but we got over the line, thankfully."

Da Costa opened the scoring after Mario Noto had threaded a through ball to the winger, who made no mistake and finished past Paul McCarthy.

The Uxbridge stopper kept his side in it before the break, saving from Fabion Simms and Noto.

Leon Antoine had a penalty appeal turned down, before his acrobatic overhead-kick went narrowly past McCarthy's post.

Harlow number one David Hughes was called into action after half-time, getting down low to his left to push Anthony Tomas' drive behind.

Simms could have doubled the Hawks' lead soon after but he missed the target with a header.

Uxbridge were reduced to ten men with 15 minutes left as Danny Julienne received a second booking for a late tackle.

The ten men continued to press the Harlow defence, but couldn't find an equaliser and the visitors held on.

HARLOW TAKE DOWN LEAGUE LEADERS IN SUPER VICTORY

Eadie's eyes are firmly on the league

ALTHOUGH a run in the FA Trophy would be a bonus, Layne Eadie (pictured above) insists the Harlow Town squad's main focus is on Ryman Premier action.

The Hawks have a weekend off before games against Brentwood in the League Cup and Brightlingsea Regent in the second-round qualifying of the Trophy.

A 1-0 win at Uxbridge on Saturday was the start of their Trophy campaign and Eadie knows what a run in the competition would do for the club, but wants his team-mates to think about their "bread and butter" first.

He said: "It is important to us and for the club to have a run."

"Of course it would be amazing to get close to Wembley, but the league and pushing on in that is the bread and butter."

"It's not ideal to have this break just as we hit form, it is annoying."

"Hopefully it will refresh the squad and work in our favour, we will still train so it's not too bad."

Spirit

"We just need to make sure we win our next game to keep the run going."

The left-back also revealed that the squad's spirit has remained high all season, even when they were struggling at the start of October.

"The spirit has always been good. Of course, when you're winning the spirit is high, but this group has character and when we were doing poorly, it wasn't phasing us because we knew it would come."

"The defeats were bad but every team has at least one blip in a season."

"That was obviously ours, but to have won three out of four with three clean sheets as well, it is very pleasing."

"As a defender it's always nice to keep clean sheets, but you know me, I love getting up the other end and contributing there just as much."

Eadie's response was similar to that of his manager, Danny Chapman, when asked what had changed recently to help turn their form around.

"We're making less errors and less mistakes, but I also think that at times we were getting unlucky and that's changed in our favour now."

Hawks' frustration with ten-day break

Unwelcome rest for Chapman's men after wins

By Matt Storey

matt.storey@hertsessexnews.co.uk

AFTER Saturday's FA Trophy win at Uxbridge, Harlow Town are in the midst of ten days without a game and Danny Chapman admitted it's frustrating after a recent turnaround in form.

The Hawks have won four of their last five games, conceding just one goal in the process, but due to scheduled opponents Merstham's FA Cup game with League Two side Oxford United, they have been left with an empty Saturday.

Chapman said: "It is frustrating because of the time it's come at."

"We want to keep our good run going because we've come away from that little dip in form."

"But we'll train tonight [Thursday] like we normally do, and then we'll have the boys in on Saturday for a session, ahead of the League Cup game against Brentwood on Tuesday [November 8], and Brightlingsea Regent in the FA Trophy on the Saturday [November 12]."

"It also gives Spencer Knight [assistant manager] and myself a chance to watch the two sides."

Because of their cup commitments, Harlow won't return to Ryman Premier action until November 19, and the boss is hoping the league will have started to take shape by then.

"It's a strange league with everyone beating everyone," explained Chapman.

"Despite that poor run we had, we're seventh and only one point off the play-offs at the moment."

Targets

"I know lots of the teams around us have games in hand, but they'll be played over the next few weeks and hopefully the league will start to take shape."

And the 35-year-old said that whatever happens, his side aren't far off their targets currently.

"Personally we're pretty pleased with how it's gone, we aren't far off where we want to be."

"We set new targets every five games and despite our indifferent patch, we're close to them."

"It's just about finding consistency, which we have in the past few games and maintaining that every week."

Knight revealed two weeks ago that the club were close to signing two new players.

Khale Da Costa has hit the ground running with two goals in three games, but Chapman said the other move has fallen through.

"We were talking with a player, but that hasn't happened and we move on."

"We aren't actively looking for players because we are what we are, and we're happy with what we've got."

"But if the right player becomes available then, of course, we'll look to bring him in."

The break also gives a chance for some of the Hawks' injured players to recover.

Chapman added: "Billy Jones has been out for four or five weeks and he should return for the Brentwood game."

"Alex Read was on the bench Saturday, and fell ill before half-time, so he'll be better as well."
